The diagram shows a building facade with a flat roof. The roof is represented by a thick grey horizontal bar at the top. Below the roof, the facade is divided into several sections by vertical lines. From left to right, there are: a large double window, a small square window, a large double window, a small square window, and a tall narrow door. Above the main facade, there are four smaller rectangular openings, each containing a grid pattern, representing skylights or ventilation. On the far right, there is a vertical section with a grid pattern, possibly representing a staircase or a ventilation shaft.

A line drawing of a building facade. The building has a sloped roof. On the left wall, there are three square windows arranged vertically. To the right, an external staircase with a metal railing leads up to a second-floor balcony, also enclosed with a metal railing. The drawing is simple, using black outlines and light blue for the windows.
